Knowing how to read an IEP isn't enough!

Wrightslaw classes and books are widely considered the “bible” for special education rights and advocacy training, for not only families whose children are in self-contained classrooms, but more importantly for those in mainstream education settings.

Learn about: how to understand testing, Extended School Year, Least Restrictive Environment, SMART IEPs, Due Process, Charter Schools, school compliance and much more!

“For the typical parent, learning the law and special ed vocabulary can be very daunting. But to truly be an equal and active participant in your child’s IEP team, it is essential to become comfortable with the essentials of legal terms like FAPE, LRE, LEA, Inclusion, ESY, and so forth.”

C. H. A. R. T. Autism Blog

Author and speaker Pete Wright, Esq., who has argued special education cases before the Supreme Court, is an attorney representing children with special educational needs. Pete struggled with learning disabilities, including dyslexia, dysgraphia and ADHD. His determination to help children grew out of his own educational experiences.

Don’t spend another IEP meeting feeling overwhelmed and unprepared! Put your child’s rights back where they belong, as the focus of the meeting. What the school can or is willing to do should not drive your child’s IEP – their needs and legal rights should.

Education budgets are shrinking, your child’s rights can get squeezed too.

Become the best advocate for your child at the upcoming Wrightslaw Workshop, hosted by the Wake Chapter of the Autism Society of NC and sponsored by the Duke Center for Autism & Brain Development

When: September 9th, 2015, 9am-4:30 pm
Where: NC State’s McKimmon Center
Cost: $160 Individuals/$220 Professionals including CEU and CLE Credits
Includes parking, lunch and 4 Wrightslaw textbooks (a $78 value)

www.wakecountyautism.com for more information & to register